

THE EPITAPH OF ÆSCHYLUS

Æschylus son of Euphorion lies here, a true son of Athens.

Sicily's flame-gold wheat circles his grave with its fire.

Go ask the plains of Marathon what kind of courage he showed there.

Go ask the long-haired Mede:

he would remember the name.