

BUT I JUST WANT YOU

The Esplanada Roadster is a dream that's built to last—
But I just want you.

It zooms from zip to ninety in the batting of a lash—
But I just want you.

It grips the road like iron on a Himalayan pass,
It's fueled by old nylons so it never uses gas,
And Car and Driver hailed it as a leader in its class—
But I just want you.

Act quickly to reserve your place at Briar Rose Estates—
But I just want you.

You'll feel secure with round-the-clock valets at every gate—
But I just want you.

The hardwood panels complement the solid marble floors,
It overlooks the golf course of the country club next door.
Distinctive urban elegance can now at last be yours—
But I just want you.

Swami Satchananda offers all the road to peace—
But I just want you.

The conflicts in your karma can be worked out and released—
But I just want you.

By meditating nightly with a mantra and a hum,
You'll burst the bounds of being and become the great become,
And you and all the universe will resonate as one—
But I just want you.
